

Brownie Troop 2896 Notes

March 14, 2007

Happy Birthday Girl Scouts! March 12 was the 95th anniversary of Girl Scouts, and this is officially “Girl Scout Week.” In honor of this, we had a joint meeting with two other Brownie troops today, and learned about the history of Brownies. The girls earned the “Brownie Girl Scouts Throughout the Years” try-it.

Each girl was given a packet with the try-its and patches earned so far this year; please attach those to their vests ASAP. I also filled in some gaps where I noticed that girls had lost pins or patches over time. Their packet also included a Brownie hair scrunchie, which was a gift to them to celebrate the Girl Scout birthday.

Only one more cookie booth left this weekend—please get Liz any other orders you might get or the money you owe for cookies as soon as possible. QSP magazine sale info will be given out at the next meeting—please hold on to any renewal notices you may be getting for magazines at home.

The girls did a great job at the health and safety fair last weekend! We will probably talk some more about calcium and healthy eating again.

The next big event is the Brownie square dance, on Friday, March 23. Yee haw! Looks like almost everyone is going.

If you didn't already let me know about the Pohick Bay cleanup on March 31, please try to do that in the next week or so. We'll make a final decision once we see how the weather looks for that day. Other family members are also welcome to volunteer.

Next meeting: March 28 (Wednesday)
