

Brownie Troop 2896 Notes

April 17, 2006

Today we finished up our swaps for camp (these are small trade items for the girls to use when they meet other Girl Scouts at camp; they will attach them to their camping hats). We also worked on some artwork to put on the bandanas we will be wearing at camp. (This is counting as one of the “Art to Wear” try-it requirements.) Bandanas will be distributed at camp, as will bucket hats for each girl.

Camp is this weekend—rain or shine. I will email directions to camp, as well as a form to put in your car to show that you are with the Brownie encampment, later this week. The camp is one exit away from Potomac Mills Mall, and we are planning to be there on Saturday around 9:00am. Don’t forget to send back permission forms—they have been emailed, or there are hard copies in this week’s folder.

Also coming home today is a little pot of basil seeds that the girls planted. This counts towards the “Make It and Eat It” try-it, which will be completed at encampment.

Next meeting: May 8
