Not Making Money? Simple Techniques for Internet Profits

Are you making as much money as you expected on the Internet? Unfortunately, for most people, the answer is no. But, by making just a few changes, you can begin to turn that situation around and generate some cash.

The first question is, do you have a website? In most cases, it is easier to make money on the Internet if you have a website.

Your money making prospects will improve dramatically with your own website. Purchasing your own domain name is best but, if you have absolutely NO cash to invest, there are a few alternatives.

Check with your ISP. Many of them offer free websites to their subscribers. Take advantage of this perk and set up your own site free of charge.

If your ISP does not offer a free site, do a search for free websites.

There are many companies out there that will give you a free website. Unfortunately, these sites usually contain numerous ads. The other disadvantage to the free sites is your site's URL. Free site URL's are usually very long and are not very sales friendly. However, if you feel that you can live with these disadvantages, by all means, give it a try.

If neither of the alternatives above work for you, do a search for free blogs. There are tons of free blogs available on the Internet.

You can set up a blog and have it online in a matter of minutes. It is very easy to do.

Once your blog is set up, sign up for a free account with Google AdSense and post ads on your site. This won't make you rich (unless yours is the blog sensation of the year), but it will bring you a few dollars. After all, every little bit helps.

If you are going the blog route, you should sign up for a PayPal account and add a donation button. Using this button, people who like your blog can give you money.

Several associates of mine with popular blogs tell me that donations are among the highest revenue producers on their sites. Again, this won't make you rich (unless yours is the blog sensation of the year), but it will bring you a few dollars and, again, every little bit helps.

Another alternative is to use one of the download malls on the Internet. Sign up for free with one of these programs and they will give you a website that is all set up and ready to go.

These sites provide digital products that visitors can purchase. You do not need to carry any inventory or send out products. They take care of everything for you. Your only job is to bring visitors to your site.

Make sure that the program offers a tiered system. That is, when you refer someone into the program, you get a percentage of their sales. It is like developing your own affiliate program without any of the problems.

With each of the methods described above, you need people to visit your site. You can do this using a variety of techniques.

Personally, I write articles. Not just one or two, I submit articles everyday. Each article I write contains a resource box with two or three links to programs or products that I recommend. To assist in your article submissions, you might benefit by using article submission software.

Writing articles brings traffic to my website each and every day! But you have to be persistent. Submit each article to the largest article submission sites and you will begin to see traffic.

You can find a good listing of the largest submission sites by downloading our PDF entitled, Favorite Submission Sites from the download page of my site <http://www.milliondollararticle.com>

In addition, do a search for free ads. There are tons of them available. Submit as many free ads as you can find.

Also, many ezines will allow you to place free advertising with them if you sign up as a subscriber. A search will provide you with plenty of ezines to choose from.

Lastly, I recommend that you develop your own product. This is the number one way to make money on the Internet. After developing my first product, my income soared by fifty fold. If you don't have your own product, I suggest you commit some time to developing one. The results can be astounding.
